Significant Plea For a Change

THAT some branches of organized labor are beginning to see the light with regard to the political situation is shown by a statement just received from William L. Hutcheson, general president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Hutcheson declares that to American labor the issues of 1944 are crucial and that "labor wants a change."

"It is my conviction," Hutcheson states, "that the New Deal administration has shown itself incapable; that its methods and policies have, themselves, created new threats to our national economy more disquieting than those which we have been attempting to escape; that wage-earners have been victims of a cruel political deception in that our economy has been entrusted to visionaries."

"When war ends," he continues, "the 12,000,000 men and women in the armed forces want to return to honest-to-God jobs. While they are away, it is the duty of all men and women of good will to oppose unsparsingly the national policies and leaders who have revealed an incapacity, or an unwillingness, to make our American free enterprise system work. They must make their opposition effective in the approaching presidential contest."

And so they must, and all indications point to that as being exactly what they will do. There are six things the American people want, according to Hutcheson: The preservation of free enterprise; the abatement of bureaucracy; the halt of paternalism; the creation of postwar jobs through private industry; the maintenance of labor's social gains and the protection of our national interest.

What labor expects with regard to all these points is amplified in persuasive manner in the statement, which has been approved by the general executive board of the organization. It is a significant declaration throughout and it will undoubtedly carry weight not only among the members of this union but among other laboring men, both organized and unorganized.

It's Time To Reverse The Spendthrift Era

IN CONTEMPLATING the rising cost of living, Americans who have experienced hard times naturally think of waste. People are now inclined to be prodigal. Lavish expenditures of funds, public and private, encourage this trend.

But eventually the public will collide with an obstacle to "making both ends meet" that will effectively reverse the spendthrift era. It may not take as much mental pressure to accomplish this about-face toward frugality as most persons think. At the first let-down in war effort, due to cancellation of war contracts, the American public may be brought up with a jerk.

Frugality still is a virtue. In a recent news item from Kansas it was disclosed that a girl cut enough wheat that combines had missed to buy a war bond. She took a small scythe and went into the fields working the edges and patches left at turns, threshing the wheat from the heads as she proceeded ahead of tractors and plows.

Unfortunately, the news dispatches failed to identify the girl. She deserves recognition at a time when spending and prodigality are rampant.

Here, indeed, is to be seen the need for putting into effect a well-known advertising slogan, exploited by a flour-milling concern: "Eventually—why not now?" It applies to people as well as to those entrusted with the functioning of government.

Another Development Of Postwar Interest

IT IS the firm conviction of this newspaper, heretofore frequently expressed, that the remarkable progress of science will play a major beneficial part in our postwar recovery.

Numerous developments and inventions have been cited to support this belief. Comes now a report from Washington by Joseph M. Guilfoyle, staff correspondent of the Wall Street Journal, that a piece of steel wire thin as a human hair promises to revolutionize the whole recording industry.

The development, as reported by Guilfoyle, is of absorbing interest. This thin steel wire, after the war, may take the place of the wax and shellac that goes into today's phonograph records. It may become tomorrow's dictaphone. It may even be used in the home to record favorite radio programs, little Joseph's private piano concert or any other event for future use.

The recorder, of which the steel wire is the end result, already is in mass production. But every one now goes in the armed forces. On the battle field it picks up on-the-spot accounts of combat operations. In the air, reconnaissance pilots talk quietly into a throat microphone, giving in detail their observations; it's this war's counterpart of pad and pencil note taking in World War I.

Favorite radio programs, which some troops are too busy to hear even when they're beamed abroad, are being repeated at the battle front by means of the recorder.

These recording machines are another of the marvels of electronics. Here's how one works: Sound waves picked up by a microphone are fed into the recorder where they are converted into electrical impulses which operate a recording electro-magnet. These impulses guide the magnet in such a way as to form a magnetic pattern on the wire.

When the recording is finished the wire can be "played back" immediately. On the playback the wire is run through a "recording head" in the same direction as when the recording was made. The "recording head" acts as a pickup, and reproduces the sound by converting the electrical impulses from the magnetic pattern on the wire into sound waves.

Credit for this development goes to Marvin Camras, a physicist only 27 years old at the Armour Research Foundation in Chicago. Youth, it seems, is no bar to progress in such enterprise from which we may assume it to be a good thing to start 'em off early in this important field and let 'em go to it.

Surrender of Japs Is Likely To Increase

ONE of the mysteries of the war, which may not be solved until the Philippines are recaptured, is what became of Japanese troops the Americans captured during the campaign on Bataan and the siege of Corregidor. A few were captured; how many, has not been disclosed.

In his "Death March on Bataan," now appearing in the Chicago Tribune, Lieut. Col. W. E. Dyess, who escaped from the Japs after a year's imprisonment and was killed in an airplane mishap in California in December, reveals that some Japanese troops were captured.

Under usual war conditions these prisoners would have been freed when Bataan and Corregidor fell, but the Japanese army does not recognize the fact that a Jap can be captured. To Japanese army commanders, a soldier who is taken by an enemy is dead.

Before this war in the Pacific continues many more months the number of Japanese prisoners taken by the Americans inevitably will mount. Despite all attempts to keep the Nip soldier in ignorance the news will trickle through the ranks that captives are well treated by Americans. Officers may blow their brains out to keep from surrendering, but the chances are that right now in the Marshall Islands, where American forces are striking some of the hardest blows of the war at the Japs, many enemy privates, marines and sailors have made up their minds to surrender rather than end their lives.

When the number of Japanese held as prisoners of war by American forces grows, it will be evidence that the Tokyo war lords are slipping on the home front.

What amazes many persons is that the Revolutionary war was started by a tax on tea—which involved no forms to be filled out.

Confessions

By MARSHALL MASLIN

If a salesman tries to get me to buy something because "this is what everybody is wearing," I grow stubborn and don't buy. (Just a snob.)

I have never been able to understand how the rear axle of an automobile works. (I mean the "differential.")

I told a clergyman that I thought I'd read ALL of the Bible some day—and he replied that he didn't see why I should.

Sometimes I wish I weren't so embarrassingly inquisitive, but most of the time I don't regret it at all. I've had some fun out of it.

Once upon a time I took an ice cold shower. But only once. (Once a friend told me that the water in a mountain lake was warm. I dived in—and came out almost as fast as I entered.)

I can't name the forty-eight states in two minutes.

I wish that when I went to school I had spent more time on science and less on literature.

I've never contemplated suicide and I expect to live to be very old, regardless of what I eat or do, solely because so many of my family have done so.

When I eat cherries I always eat the sweetest first. So my enjoyment slowly decreases. If I were wiser I'd eat the greener ones first and my pleasure would be progressively greater.

Once I knew a shoemaker's children and as I remember them their shoes were always well-soled.

In fiction the young man who falls in love becomes a terrific go-getter. . . . I have not noticed that this is true, ordinarily, in real life. Usually they go dreamy on you.

Inflation Spiral Is Seen if Wage Formula Cracks

By MARK SULLIVAN

With fingers crossed—with head bowed and prepared to be bloody soon—I print part of a letter from a citizen of a small city in Pennsylvania. He writes about the cost of living—and on that subject is engaged in an enterprise of what he calls debunking: "I think all the extravagant claims that living costs have increased from forty per cent to seventy per cent, as stated by labor leaders and others, according to the newspapers and radio broadcasters, ought to be debunked." To this end the Pennsylvania citizen tells his own experience:

Mark Sullivan

"I happen to be one of those persons who keep a careful account of all my expenditures, and have been doing so for over forty years. My family, for a number of years, has consisted of three persons (all adults) . . . We have had on our table about the same kind of food throughout the past five years. Our food bills have been as follows:

1939	$870.05
1940	833.26
1941	871.09
1942	858.28
1943	872.41

Exception to Rule

That this gentleman tells his experience correctly, there can be no doubt—his letter is that of a man of standing, who has an accurate mind and practices careful management. But probably we had better conclude that he must be an exceptionally careful buyer. No doubt there are many persons who by careful buying, and taking advantage of changes in the prices of foods, have managed to keep their cost of food down.

But these are exceptions to the general run—worthy exceptions but still exceptions. The common experience is that cost of living has increased, markedly. But just how much? About this there is now a row, soon to make contentious news. The basic facts are:

Some eighteen months ago, the War Labor Board said that the increase in cost of living—taking January 1, 1941, as the starting point—had been fifteen percent. Therefore, said WLB, wage-rates should be increased fifteen percent—but not more. This is the so-called "Little Steel" formula. WLB has stuck to this firmly, and seems disposed to stick.

Higher Advance Asserted

Some months ago, labor leaders said the increase in cost of living had gone much higher than fifteen percent—and they demanded that wage-rates be increased, that the Little Steel formula be abandoned.

Under pressure from the labor leaders, President Roosevelt appointed a committee to study the cost of living, composed of two labor leaders, two industrialists, and chairman William H. Davis, of WLB.

Late last month the two labor members announced a conclusion—that the increase in cost of living since January 1, 1941, has been 43.5 per cent.

Thereupon, January 30, Chairman Davis, of the committee, announced that the two labor members of the committee had beat the gun, that the committee as a whole had not arrived at a conclusion, that in due course the committee would duly come to a conclusion and duly report it to President Roosevelt.

Bureau the Standard

The standing authority for official government statistics on the cost of living is the Bureau of Labor Statistics. It says the increase in cost of living has been 23.5 per cent—only about half of what the labor leaders say.

To say that cost of living has increased by any given percentage, does not necessarily mean there should be an increase in wage rates.

Roosevelt's Actions Are Seen Supporting Wallace's Statement about Fourth Term

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — Mr. Wallace, the V.P., divulged no secret when he said he thought Mr. Roosevelt intended running for the fourth term.

In truth, the president has been trotting a trial heat here the past few weeks. By his actions, Mr. Roosevelt has let all his associates know his intentions.

His conduct of the Democratic National Committee meeting particularly informed all his party associates in and out of Congress in unmistakable terms that he expects to head their ticket again. The reaction has been mixed.

For a considerable extent, his forwardness has lessened criticism of him and his policies by wayward Democratic congressmen. The southern bloc has been pushed into the position of accepting the inevitable or openly breaking. Only one so far, Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, of South Carolina, has stuck openly to his critical guns.

Some still talk of running Senator Byrd as the opposition candidate in the South. Organizations working for his candidacy exist in several southern states.

Critics of O. P. A. price regulations are usually charged with promoting inflation. The O. P. A. by contrast, is pictured as an agency striving to save the country. Without detracting from the merits of the O. P. A., it should be pointed out that such a picture is lopsided. There are plenty of people in the country who believe in the necessity of price-fixing just as sincerely as the O. P. A. but who are bitterly opposed to rules which they feel disrupt production and distribution, thereby indirectly promoting inflation.

Typical of O. P. A. rulings of the disruptive character, is the one affecting low-cost wearing apparel under O. P. A.'s Highest Price Line Limitation. This ruling, by a maze of technicalities, actually prevents low-cost retailing. Following is comment on the highest price line order, from distributors over the country:

A merchant from Ohio says: "The quality of children's clothes that we are permitted to sell now for the price established by the basic period is so poor that the customer will not buy it. . . . This is a waste of raw material. . . . And from Missouri: "We have not been able to get higher priced items for our trade and hence our shelves are bare. The price limitation has kept up from replenishing our stock at a higher price level, although labor and manufacturing costs have risen due to war conditions, and since this is a farming community, all the other merchants for several miles around labor under the same shortages as we do. Young children are actually scantily clothed and badly clothed due to this condition." Another merchant from Missouri declares: "We have carried women's house dresses in low-price brackets. The quality of dresses of the same price ranges is so poor now that we have been forced to drop this line."

Who is promoting inflation, the creator of an unwelcome price rule or the merchants who seek to keep the channels of distribution open and a steady flow of necessities moving to consumers?

Thus the trial heat has somewhat watered down to the president's opposition within the party, but all the old coals still burn underneath. It has had little effect on the Republicans who are extremely confident they will win more than those states now having Republican governors (twenty-six).

Final choice, no doubt, will be made on the basis of what man will contribute most to the ticket politically.

taxes—but not by tax-makers. Mr. Willkie denounced the president for having failed to submit a program to raise half that amount, but he himself failed to mention a single additional way of raising the money.

Theoretically Possible

The federal tax bill now is $43,000,000,000, state and local, $11,000,000,000. The national income is running around $153,000,000,000. Theoretically, it is therefore possible for the government to take $16,000,000,000 more as the country now has two-thirds of what it earns left to live on.

But it would require something like a forty per cent withholding tax, meaning that the man earning $50 a week would get only $30.

A sales tax or an excess profits tax on individuals (farmers who went to shipyards) would not raise anything like the Willkie amount. Any award, therefore, must await a declaration from Mr. Willkie as to how he would get the money because that is the main problem.

Bond Drive

I have heard of neighborhood prattlers—not in my neighborhood, however,—spreading drive against bond buying on the ground that there will be inflation.

Maybe there will be a limited amount of price inflation, or, at least, continuation of the inflation we have experienced in this war. Everyone knows that. But these bonds are being bought not only by 60,000,000 people, but by every large corporation and investor in the country.

The wise financial brains fully realize the possibilities of inflation. But they also know that a bond is the same as money, will always have the same value as money. They know the whole financial structure of the country is now wrapped up in those bonds.

As long as there is an ounce of authority in government or big influence in large financial quarters, or from the biggest bloc in all history, those 60,000,000 bond buyers, a destructive inflation of these investments is impossible.

The wise investors know what the neighborhood prattlers cannot even understand.

For This Have We Government

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Republican National Committee's Bulletin reports appearance of a snappy little booklet put out by OPA. Two million copies, according to this authority, have been printed, at a cost of $25,000.

We haven't seen the booklet, but if all the eighty hints to successful home life are as profound as the following quoted samples, it is not hard to understand the growing public impatience with paternalism:

Keep your children from writing on the walls.
Do not throw debris or paper where it will clog drain pipes.
Oil all squeaking hinges.
Do not throw lighted cigarettes out the window.
Mop up spilled water.

We can understand now why one of our bright young bureaucrats thought up that one about getting Jap prisoners to teach midwest farmers how to bathe.

Praises for bravery are being heaped upon Mr. Willkie for daring to demand $16,000,000,000 more

Marshall Blasting Will Be Repeated In Pacific Drive

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Months and months of planning under conditions of the utmost secrecy preceded the successful seizure of the Marshall Islands. The co-ordination of army and navy, of land and air and sea power was carried out according to plan in what may prove to be the first example of the "omnibus" way.

David Lawrence

The bombardment which the United States Navy gave to the Marshall Islands was probably the most devastating bombardment ever made in a small area by naval forces. The islands were literally plastered with shells. The Japanese who were not killed outright were so dazed and shocked by the shelling that a few prisoners taken were almost sane with fright.

How did the operations in the Marshalls differ from those in the Gilberts? There was a fierce naval bombardment in the Gilberts, too, and in both cases bombardment by land-based planes and planes from aircraft carriers played a decisive part. But in the landing on the Marshalls, mobile artillery was brought ashore and put into effective use so promptly that the Japanese got it from the sea, and from the land. A bombardment probably unparalleled in modern war.

Fleet Composition a Secret

The composition of the American fleet must remain a secret. It is doubtful whether the Japanese communication facilities remained effective long enough to make any kind of coherent report of what happened—what kind of a fleet was sent against them. The heavy guns of battleships boomed in the area, but just how many or what heavy cruisers or light cruisers were used will not be revealed. It is permissible to say that the size of the fleet was by no means determined by the need for shelling the Marshalls but was based on a remote possibility that the Japanese fleet might come down to do battle just as the operations began.

The fact that a small task force of American warships, attached to the Marshalls just west of the Gilberts is considered in some quarters as a "diversionary" attack, meant to divert attention from the real objective—the Marshalls. The Japanese, however, know how vulnerable they are to attack from the Aleutian bases, and it may be doubted whether the attack was isolated. Doubtless more attacks will be forthcoming in the northern sector of the Pacific as well as in the South and Southwest Pacific, so that the Japanese will soon have to make up their minds whether they will abandon more and more garrisons or make an attempt to reinforce them.

Jap Units Starving

It is reliably reported that many Japanese units are literally starving to death. It is doubtful whether in recent weeks supplies could get into the Marshalls from Japanese bases. The tendency of the Japanese high command to abandon their overseas garrisons when they are blockaded by the American navy is growing.

Incidentally, the havoc being wrought by American submarines against Japanese shipping is not told in the simple statistics of tonnage destroyed. An acute form of blockade has been carried on by our submarines. Also it is known that our task forces in and around the Marshalls and Gilberts have been aided materially by the submarine blockade.

The part played by the army and forces in carrying huge quantities of bombs to the Marshalls in the weeks preceding the seizure is another chapter of the story that cannot be told in full for some time to come. It is sufficient to say that the army air forces and the artillery and ground troops of the army and the ever-present marine corps have worked together as a team with the navy's big ships and aircraft carrier forces in a synchronization of effort that spells in due time the doom of Japan.

Repetition Expected

Valuable experience is being gained in how to approach the atolls held by the Japanese and, if the Japanese fleet does not risk a decisive battle sooner, the American navy and the air forces and ground troops of the army and marine corps will be repeating during 1944 and 1945 in the Carolines and the Marianas and in the Philippines some of the lessons learned and plans used in seizing the Gilberts and the Marshalls.

The most powerful navy ever assembled in the Pacific and perhaps anywhere in modern times is on the move now. Naval operations do not come rapidly but what they accomplish nevertheless is a progressive march toward the ultimate victory.

MRS. C. L. EVANS FILES SUIT FOR SEPARATION

Suit for a decree of separation on grounds of cruelty and brutality was filed in circuit court Tuesday by Mrs. Jeanne Evans, 218 Greene street, against Chester Leroy Evans. The bill of complaint states that they were married in December, 1937, and one child was born of the marriage. Mrs. Evans charges that her husband, an employee of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, has threatened to do her bodily harm on several occasions, the most recent being on February 7. The plaintiff, represented by Robert MacDonald Bruce, attorney, asks separate maintenance and custody of the child. She also asked that a restraining order be issued against the defendant prohibiting him from molesting or interfering with her in any manner and from entering the premises on Greene street. A court order, issued by Associate Judge William A. Huster, directs Evans to pay counsel fees and $30 weekly alimony pending final settlement of the suit, unless cause to the contrary is shown on or before February 12. Visiting Turk pilots like America—our flying training, our ways and customs. They find us friendly people. It isn't long before Have a "Coke" greets them and happy comradeship results. Turk and Texan respond alike to its ring of good fellowship. You get the same response when you serve Coca-Cola from your icebox at home. ## Inform Game Season Favored Eckhart Group

Sportsmen's Association Asks Continuance of 1943 Regulations

By RUDOLPH NICKEL.
FROSTBURG, Feb. 9.—Highlights of the business meeting in connection with the seventh annual banquet of the Eckhart Square Circle Sportsmen's Association, last evening at the club house in Eckhart, was the passage of a resolution favoring the continuance of the ungamed season for Maryland and its effect in 1943, and the appointment of a committee of nine members to meet with the Executive Committee of the Allegheny-Garrett County Sportsmen's Association, for advocating the construction of a large new fish hatchery in that county.

History Is Reviewed
William Pilsinger presided at the banquet, which was featured by a series of entertainment numbers, the first of a historical sketch of the group by George Walters, who stated that the association was organized February 15, 1937, with the following officers: William Pilsinger, president; Richard Watson, vice president; Harold Pilsinger, secretary; and John Watson, treasurer.

The group was incorporated June 5, 1937, and on October 22, 1939, opened the present club house, valued at $1,500, which was constructed by the members.

Walters reported that in the past five years the association purchased 756 rabbits at a cost of $900 and placed them in the woods and Eckhart and vicinity. Philip P. Smith, a member of the game commission, was made honorary member of the club June, 1941. The club has an honor roll listing the names of fifty members with the armed forces.

Variety Program Given
The program in connection with the banquet included talks by Francis Ruge, deputy game warden; R. Lancaster, Frederick Crowe, John Sleeman and Rudolph Nickel of the Frostburg club, and Sgt. Theodor, Mt. Savage, former game warden, who is home from an extended furlough. The Chambers brothers gave an acrobatic exhibition; William Hart contributed humorous readings; Robert Lancaster and Robert Sandvick appeared in a pie eating contest and James LaVaile, and George Williams, LaVaile, banjoists, furnished the music.

The present officers of the club, recently elected, are Carl Robertson, president; Willard Lewis, vice president; George Pilsinger, secretary; and William Keller, treasurer. The association begins the current year with a paid up membership of approximately 100 members.

"Tarzan's Desert Mystery" Is Newest of Series

Some of America's most savage and rugged scenery, both sandy desert and towering mountain in variety, was filmed by Sol Lesser's wandering movie company for "Tarzan's Desert Mystery," now at the Liberty theater.

In the new RKO Radio "Tarzan" adventure, the hero has to leave his beloved jungle and undertake a mission of desperate hazard amid desert sands and arid mountains. This type of scenic background was found by location scouts in spots never before used for movie backgrounds.

True, the rugged High Sierra country where "Gunga Din" was filmed and the desert sand dunes near Yuma, Arizona, where "Beau Geste" was made would have served well enough scenically. There was one obstacle.

The army was using them for desert training grounds! So the "Tarzan's Desert Mystery" company went beyond, to wild country of Utah, Nevada and East-Central California.

Deaths and injuries on war plant production lines add up to the equivalent of 900,000 workers absent a full year.

LaSalle To Seek Third Straight Victory in City Series Tomorrow

Explorers and Fort Hill Collide in Return Battle; Allegany Cagers Play at Barton

The LaSalle High Explorers, traveling on the right road to another city scholastic basketball championship, will strive for their third straight victory in the intra-city series tomorrow night at 8 o'clock when they take on Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill High Sentinels in a return tussle on the Fort Hill court.

Coach Bill Keegan's Blue and Gold hoopers, who have won seventeen of their nineteen battles to date, will be favored to top the Hilltoppers for the second time this season but another close and hard-fought skirmish appears in the books.

The Sentinels, who have split even in sixteen contests this season, gave Keegan's dribblers quite a busy evening before losing 43-36 on LaSalle's home court. Tomorrow night, the Sentinels will be performing amid familiar surroundings and if they come up with one of their better games, should provide the fans with a real battle.

Reserve Teams To Meet
In the preliminary encounter at 7 o'clock, reserve teams representing the two schools will collide.

The Allegany High Campers, stopped by LaSalle and Keyser in their last two outings after marking up thirteen consecutive victories, will probably return to the win column tomorrow evening when they resume their Western Maryland Interscholastic League campaign at Barton.

The West Siders, setting the loop pace with five triumphs, defeated Barton 47-25 at Campobello. The Bartonites' WMIL record consists of a victory over Bruce and losses to the other four league clubs.

Beall High's Mountaineers, of Frostburg, trailing Allegany by one game, shouldn't have any trouble with Bruce High, of Westernport, when the quint meets in tomorrow's other WMIL attraction. Beall, the host team this time, trimmed Bruce, which has failed to mark up a loop triumph, 37-22 at Westernport.

Keyser at Ridgeley
Tomorrow's program calls for five other games — Keyser at Ridgeley and Moorefield at Franklin in Potomac Valley Conference tilts, Davis at Thomas, Tygart's Valley at Parsons and Elk Garden at Petersburg. Keyser will be favored to keep its conference record unblemished at Ridgeley's expense. It will be the first meeting of these Mineral county rivals this season and the Golden Tornado will carry a record of twelve victories and two losses into the contest. Keyser has won its last ten starts, whipping Allegany on Tuesday night. In the conference, Coach "Tack" Clark's crew has won six in a row.

Two battles are on tonight's slate. Wardensville will go to Mathias for a conference scrap and Fort Ashby will journey to Elk Garden.

Navy Hoopers Trim Villanova, 35 to 27

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 9 (AP)—Unleashing a barrage of baskets in the final quarter, Navy's basketball squad scored its seventh straight win of the season by handing Villanova a 35-27 defeat.

In conquering the Wildcats, the Middies had to come from behind in the final quarter after the visitors had overcome a ten point lead at the end of the quarter to lead 27-25.

At the outset the Sailors found no trouble in holding the visitors to a lone point in the first quarter while they went out in front by thirteen points.

But the visitors, after netting four field goals in twenty-four shots in the second quarter, came to life in the third, and in six minutes had taken the lead on Al Postus's pop shot from mid-court.

Ken Longnecker, Middle high scorer with ten points, put his club back in the lead with an under-the-basket heave and from there on the Middies sailed through to win.

Ursuline Academy Defeats Paw Paw

The Ursuline academy sextet, with Betty Hill caging nine field goals and Jeanne Lippold seven, easily defeated Paw Paw (W. Va.) high ladies, 40-20, on the SS. Peter and Paul school court last night. The local team took a 16-6 lead in the first quarter and set the pace the rest of the way. King had four double-doubles for Paw Paw. The lineup:

Army Defeats Pitt

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 9 (AP)—The undefeated United States Military Academy quintet overwhelmed an inferior Pittsburgh Panther basketball team, 66 to 32, today in gaining its ninth successive win of the campaign.

Kelleher used thirteen players in routing the erratic Panthers but played his six-foot four-inch center, Ed Christl, long enough to ring up sixteen points and lead the victors' attack.

Fairgo Requests Dates for Racing

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP)—A schedule of racing dates calling for normal ten-day meetings at the state's four minor tracks was drawn up today at a meeting of representatives of the various associations and forwarded immediately to the state racing commission.

The commission was expected to give its approval, since the dates asked do not conflict with any plans for major racing.

The schedule:
Hagerstown—July 11-15 and July 18-22, inclusive.
Bel Air—July 26 to August 5, inclusive.

Marlboro—August 23 to September 2, inclusive.

Cumberland—Application already in for August 8 to Aug. 19, both inclusive, subject to approval of the commission.

Under normal arrangements, Timonium would open on Labor day and close Sept. 14, but Timonium has been idle for two seasons because the grounds have been occupied by the army.

Last season, three of the four tracks held meetings, with only Bel Air unable to offer its usual ten days.

Revenuers Turn Back St. Mark's Courtmen

Talk by Bricker At Capital Will Be on Airwaves

Address at Lincoln Dinner Will Replace March of Time Program

By C. F. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Gov. John W. Bricker, speaking at a Lincoln dinner of Republican leaders at Washington also is to broadcast via NBC at 10:30 Thursday night. The talk replaces the usual March of Time broadcast. The

Today's Pattern

Disarmingly simple, utterly wearable is this button-front frock, Pattern 9019, trimmed with simple stitching. It takes naturally to quick sewing and ironing. Easy too, from the sewing angle—as witness the diagram showing the very few pattern pieces.

Pattern 9019 comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40. Size 16 takes three and three-fourths yards thirty-five inch fabric.

Send sixteen cents in coins for this pattern to The Cumberland News, 39, Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York 11, N. Y. Write plainly size, name, address, style number.

Ten cents more brings our 1944 Marian Martin spring pattern book New, easy-to-make styles. Free pattern printed in book.

Axis Leaders Be Tried? For that purpose it will have as speakers Emil Ludwig, German-born biographer and historian; Samuel Grafton, newspaper columnist; and Louis Nizer, attorney and author.

Talk from London
NBC 12:15 p. m. From London, Rabbi Barnett R. Bricker of Cleveland on "Jewish Chaplains in the War"; MBS 10:30 p. m. War Food Administrator Marvin Jones on the food situation.

Charles Ruggles has been picked as the guest of the CBS Suspense mystery at 8 o'clock. He will do "Suspicion". In the Blue's series of Bill of Rights drama under the theme "Congress Shall Make No Laws" at 1:45 will have Jane Darwell as the star.

The war bond dinner, one of a series on CBS, will come at 12:30 a. m.

Ohio governor is among those being mentioned as a Republican presidential candidate possibility.

America's Town Meeting under the usual guidance of George V. Denny, Jr., on the Blue at 8:30, will go into the question of "How Should from Minneapolis instead of the previously announced Los Angeles. The NBC's Music of the New World of 11:30 is being conducted by Henri Nusco. . . . Bright Horizon, CBS morning serial at 11:30, is coming this week from Lake Placid, N. Y., both in the script and actually.

British Magicians' Props Really Disappear

LONDON.—(P)—Britain's conjurers are having trouble conjuring up things to conjure with, says the British Information Service.
The "Vanishing Lady" has vanished—into the forces and factories. Rabbits and eggs no longer come out of hats, but go into stomachs. The "rainbow handkerchief" has gone with clothes rationing.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

IF YOU compiled records based on thousands of hands, you would find that the way you make out in the play is usually decided by what somebody does with a small card or cards. Almost anybody can keep track of the aces, kings and queens, and do the right thing with them a big proportion of the time. But there is a terrific difference between the way the careless player uses his little cards and the way the fine player does, including signaling.

Small Cards Decide It
A switch to spades was therefore clearly indicated. If East played the 4 on the opening diamond lead. That would have given the side three spade tricks plus two in diamonds, setting the contract two tricks, instead of presenting the declarer an overtrick.

Tomorrow's Problem
Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 2
2 3 3 Pass 4
The old cut-and-dried lead of the diamond K was made by West, and East did the old cut-and-dried stunt of signaling with the 8, because he wanted his partner to know the side held all of the top three honors in the suit. That piece of worthless information was expensive to give, as West followed with the A and then led to the Q, which South ruffed. Two heart tricks were followed by four clubs for a discard of all of South's spades, enabling him to make his contract plus an extra trick.

Business Faces Great Postwar Employment Task

Speaker Says Industry Can Prevent Government Interference

By A. TRAGO BRUST, JR.

It is up to business and not to the government to assume the major share of employing 35,000,000 people after the war, Felix A. Grissett, of the Economic Development committee established by the Treasury department, told members of the Postwar Planning committee of the chamber of commerce last night.

Grissett, speaking at the dinner meeting held in Central Y. M. C. A. pointed out that this country faces the tremendous task of employing 10,000,000 more persons after the war than were working in 1940, the peak production year of peace-time.

In addition, he pointed out, industry must produce $125,000,000,000 in goods and services after the war, or one-third more than the $100,000,000,000 produced in the peak year of 1940.

Some people feel, Grissett said, that wholesale unemployment is dangerous, that there is too much social and economic dynamite to permit it, so either industry must provide employment or the government will.

Increased Regulation
If the government does, Grissett related, it means that government will go into business on an unprecedented scale and that regulation will be far greater than it is now in wartime.

The Economic Development committee does not oppose public works as such, according to Grissett, but it does urge communities to guard against placing too much reliance on public works as shock absorbers against unemployment.

There will be a need for some projects, he said, but it is economically and socially unsound for an agency to create public works just to create jobs. They should fill the long-term needs of the various communities.

Back in the dark days, Grissett related, there were 3,000,000 people employed on "made jobs" but economists say now that this country is faced with an employment problem many times greater than 3,000,000 persons.

Formed To Stimulate Business
The committee, supported by voluntary contributions of business firms, was formed to stimulate business into getting its house in order so it can meet the challenge when the war ends, Grissett said, adding that the job must be done on a community and company by company basis. For that reason, he stated, the committee works closely with civic organizations and chambers of commerce.

Some people say, according to Grissett, that business must know what government is going to do with plans, machinery, accumulated goods and taxes, but he added business cannot sit by and see what the government is going to do.

Business must see that the situation will be such that the government will not interfere, he emphasized, pointing out that fifty per cent of the work of the Economic Development committee is research being carried on by the ablest staff ever brought together. Findings of the staff will be made available to companies and communities for study.

Grissett declared that the procedure of the local committee in sending out questionnaires to ascertain postwar employment here is exactly in line with the committee's policy all over the country.

Cumberland Is Fortunate
He pointed out that Cumberland is fortunate in not being a war boom community, but urged members of the local committee not to permit the fact to lull them into complacency. The local study will constitute a part of the overall picture being completed throughout the country by the Economic Development committee.

Estimates that can be made from this picture will be a lot better, according to Grissett, than the guess "from far off of some bureaucrats."

Business, big and little, will need a lot of skill practice to meet the postwar goal and the whole future of economic life of this country as we know it, Grissett stated, is wrapped up in the intelligent thinking of 2,000,000 firms that employ people.

After the war business must use the same sort of ingenuity that brought on the undreamed of war-time production. Time is running short, he explained, inasmuch as $12,000,000,000 in war contracts, more than the total of the First World War, have already been cancelled. In war production centers of the Middle West there is no longer a labor shortage, he added, because of the war contracts that are being cancelled almost daily.

Edmund S. Burke, chairman of the chamber's Postwar Planning committee, presided.

Lt. A. M. Sheffler, Jr., Former Cumberlander, Is Wounded in Italy

Lt. A. Meyeran Sheffler, Jr., 26, formerly of Cumberland, was wounded in action in Italy on January 23, according to a letter received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Sheffler, 8414 apartments, Baltimore.

Lt. Sheffler is a grandson of Mrs. Samuel Sheffler, 328 Fayette street. He joined the armed service in February, 1943.

ELECTED—J. Milton Patterson, director of the Maryland State Department of Public Welfare, has been elected president of the American Public Welfare Association for a third term. The association includes public welfare administrators and workers throughout the country. Patterson, a native of Cumberland, is the only Marylander ever to head the group. He has been state director since 1939.

Bottling Company Seeks New Trial

Coca Cola Firm Says Jury's Damages Verdict Was Excessive

A motion for a new trial was filed yesterday in circuit court by the Coca-Cola Bottling Works, Incorporated, after a jury Tuesday awarded damages against the firm in the amount of $2,000 to Madeline Basile, 17, who claimed permanent impairment of her health since last July 9 when she allegedly discovered a mouse in the bottom of a bottle of Coca-Cola from which she had been drinking.

A petition and order of court, signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster, extending the time for filing bills of exception for thirty days after ruling on the motion for a new trial, also were filed by William S. Jenkins, counsel for the bottling works.

The motion for the new trial declares that the verdict of the jury was against the weight of the evidence and that it was excessive.

Further, the motion asserted that the verdict of the jury was contrary to the instructions of the court, and that the court committed error in its rulings on the admissibility of certain testimony.

At the hearing Tuesday the bottling works company provided a detailed description of its bottling and capping processes in an effort to prove that Miss Basile's experience was not due to negligence of the company.

Softball Championship Trophy Arrives Here

Each year at the summer encampment of the Maryland State Guard an inter-battalion softball competition is held to determine the Brigade championship. The winning battalion is awarded the General Mohr trophy, named after the commanding general of the Maryland State Guard, Brigadier General Dwight H. Mohr. The battalion winning this trophy is entitled to hold it until it is won by another battalion. In addition another and smaller trophy is presented to the winning battalion to become its permanent possession.

Last year the Brigade softball championship was won by the Eighth battalion, composed of men from Cumberland and Hagerstown. The General Mohr Trophy remains at Battalion headquarters at Hagerstown, but the smaller trophy is shared by both the Hagerstown and Cumberland companies. Last night at the state assembly in Cumberland Capt. David C. Clark, chaplain of the Eighth battalion and battalion athletic officer, brought the latter trophy to Cumberland and presented it to Companies C and D. It will remain at the armory for some months.

The battalion softball team which last August won the championship at Fort George G. Meade was composed of the following enlisted men: Snapp and Martin (both of whom are now in federal service); Weimer (captain and coach of the team); Robinette, Bates, Bayard, Smith, Talbert, Green, Malloy and Challinor.

Allegheny County Exceeds War Loan Campaign Quota

Sale of E Bonds, However, Is Less Than Half of Goal

Allegheny county has exceeded its $2,400,000 goal in the Fourth War Loan campaign, Charles A. Piper, chairman of the county War Finance committee, announced last night, but he added that receipts from the sale of series E bonds are less than half the quota.

The total sale in the county of all bond issues was $2,801,166.25 as of February 7, Piper said, or $401,166.25 over the quota.

He emphasized, however, that the E bond sale is lagging far behind its quota with a total of only $415,631.25 having been received against a goal of $900,000.

The Fourth War Loan drive ends on Tuesday and Piper said last night that the sale of E bonds will fall below the quota unless every person buys an extra bond.

Yesterday, Boy Scouts of Potomac Council started to canvass local homes to build up the bond sale. They will continue their efforts today and tomorrow and members of the War Finance committee are hopeful that their efforts will help swell the receipts from E bonds.

In Garrett county, Howard Riggs, chairman of the drive there, disclosed yesterday that that county also is over its goal for the campaign.

The quota in Garrett county was $150,000 and receipts as of February 7 were $158,356.75. The E bond quota there was $66,768.75.

Salvation Army Reports Increase In Youth Program

Interest in young people's work of the Salvation Army here is increasing rapidly, Capt. R. S. Ball reported at a meeting of the Advisory board held yesterday at noon in the Salvation Army Citadel on North Mechanic street.

Seventy-eight religious training classes were held with an attendance of 326, while 903 persons attended twenty-three youth program classes.

In the senior statistics the report shows that 679 persons attended thirty-eight indoor meetings while eighty-three persons attended ten Home League meetings.

Capt. Ball announced that due to increased interest in youth recreational activities at the South Cumberland outpost that four rooms will be used in the future instead of one.

Anthony Lagratta, Wounded, Improves

Local Marine, Casualty at Tarawa, Has Three Brothers in Service

Pfc. Anthony J. Lagratta, son of Mrs. Lena N. Lagratta, 135 West Third street, wounded in action at Tarawa, is improving in a base hospital in the Pacific area, according to word received recently by members of his family.

Announcement that Lagratta, a marine, was wounded was made last night in an Associated Press dispatch containing a Navy department casualty list.

Members of his family, however, said they received word from the government on January 9 that he had been wounded. Prior to that, they said, he wrote them to the same effect and said he had been shot in the side but that his wound was not serious. In a letter received last week he stated that he was improving and asked his family not to worry.

Lagratta, the second of four brothers in service to be wounded, has been in the marine corps since November 9, 1942, and has been overseas about eight months.

His brother, Gunner's Mate Third Class James Lagratta, was wounded sometime ago but since has returned to duty and is now at sea. He has been in the navy since September 1942.

Another brother, Pfc. Frank Lagratta, is stationed in England and has been in service for three years, while still another brother, Pfc. Joseph Lagratta, stationed at Camp Van Dorn, Miss., has been in service since May 1943.

The couple, according to the bill, were married March 9, 1926, in Baltimore and lived together until May 10, 1933. Mrs. Pearce charges that her husband abandoned and deserted her.
